P.C.

. The impugned order granting access to the father to meet his minor daughter does not call for interference and in case the petitioner-wife now feels that for some reasons it is not convenient to her to grant access from her mother's house, she may apply to the Court below for variation of the order so as to change the location of the father's visit and such application may be considered on its own merits. Petition is disposed off with such a liberty.
